THE CHINESE BEAT COLUMBUS TO AMERICA — BY 800 YEARS!

By JASON HOLSTEAD / Correspondent

The discovery of a Chinese mummy in Peru proves that Asian ships sailed to the Americas at least 800 years before Europeans even thought about coming to the New World!

Ancient mummy proves Asians were the world's greatest explorers!

"The Spanish and Portuguese have always considered themselves to be the world's greatest early explorers but nothing could be further from the truth," Archaeologist Dr. Axel Klaebel told reporters in Aarhus, Denmark.

"The Chinese were centuries ahead of them. This mummy proves that they had the ships, the intelligence, the courage and the will to reach South America in the year 700.

"The Spanish and Portuguese at that time still thought the world was flat. They were terrified to sail too far for fear of falling off the edge of the earth."

Dr. Klaebel found the Chinese mummy at an archaeological dig east of Lima in July. It is thought to be that of a man in his early 30s who died of a viral infection.

He was buried with the remains of two horses, a chariot and highly detailed maps of both China and Peru.

"It would appear that this explorer had no intentions of sailing back to China," said the expert. "In fact there is some evidence to show that he actually tried to set himself up as king of Peru's Indian population.

"Bits of pottery found along with his body show Indian women bowing before an Oriental man on a throne."

The rise of South America's Inca empire was still hundreds of years away.

But Dr. Klaebel speculated the seeds of the Inca civilization probably was being sown by the Chinese explorer.

"This extraordinary man," he added, "just might have given South America the greatest civilization that it has ever known."

Dr. Klaebel says he is planning a return trip to Peru early next year to search for more evidence of Oriental influence in the New World.

"We are particularly interested in finding one of the boats they used to cross the Pacific Ocean," explained the expert.

DISCOVERY of an Oriental mummy, with a chariot and maps of China, proves Asian explorers reached South America around the year 700.

120-foot shark attacks sub!

12 injured when giant creature rams Russian vessel in the South China Sea!

VESSEL'S hull was battered during the cowardly attack.

A 120-foot shark attacked a Russian submarine in the South China Sea in one of the wildest underwater dramas ever!

The nuclear-powered MIKE class sub was heavily damaged in the incident on October 19. Twelve crewmen were injured. But Russian press reports said no hands were lost when the creature rammed the sub and snapped off of a stabilizer with its teeth.

"The attack was unprovoked but intense and potentially deadly," President Boris Yeltsin told reporters who queried him about the attack at a news conference in Moscow.

"From what I understand, the shark escaped. But it surely remains a threat to marine traffic in the South China Sea."

The mind-boggling underwater drama reportedly unfolded while the submarine was on routine maneuvers in international waters off the trying to confirm the sonar reading visually when the shark attacked.

"We didn't have time to take evasive action," said Capt. Menkes. "To be honest, we initially thought we had collided with a smaller submarine. But then we saw the shark as it snapped a stabilizer off with its teeth."

A spokesman for the Russian Navy said Capt. Menkes thought about firing a torpedo in order to kill the monster but decided against it because of the submarine's proximity to other ships at sea.

Instead, he managed to navigate the crippled vessel out of the area and the shark did not pursue.

Marine biologist Alexei Fedchenkov said the creature probably attacked the submarine for "trespassing on its territory."

He said the shark, if it was indeed 120 feet long, would be the largest ever encountered.

2-YEAR-OLD SURVIVES 6 MONTHS IN SNAKE-FILLED JUNGLE!

HEAVE Eric Taylor is back in the loving arms of his mum Maryanne after his nightmare ordeal

By TIMOTHY NELSON / Correspondent

Toddler Eric Taylor survived for six mind-boggling months in an Australian jungle infested with pythons, crocodiles and wild boars — by eating bugs and sucking on wet leaves!

Though given up for dead, the tousle-haired tyke was finally found, sitting on a rock with his little arms reaching out to hug the astonished logging crew that found him.

Incredibly, 2-year-old Eric had covered almost 250 miles of dense jungle while trying to find his way back home. Yet he had only a few scratches and bruises to show for his harrowing ordeal.

"He's a miracle baby in every sense of the word," Cooktown Police Sgt. Ken Salmon said, shaking his head in wonder.

"As time dragged on, we weren't looking for a live baby, we were looking for a dead body. Thank God, it didn't turn out that way. But it most certainly could have.

"We killed a 17-foot python right in the area we found the boy. It could have swallowed him whole in the wink of an eye.

"And I shudder to think about the crocs and the bears. That area is crawling with them. How that child escaped their clutches is something I'll never understand."

Lost toddler ate bugs to stay alive!

The youngster's perilous trek began when his mom Maryanne left him alone while she drove about a hundred yards down the road from their home in the wild jungle outback south of Cooktown.

Eric, clad only in a disposable diaper and his undershirt, toddled off into the jungle and was out of sight when his mom returned minutes later.

When she couldn't find him, she drove to Cooktown and alerted police. Within the hour, hundreds of volunteers were scouring the dense jungle in a search that would span four agonizing weeks before they gave up hope and called off the hunt.

Miraculously, a logging crew stumbled on the boy six months later. They radioed for a helicopter to take him back to Cooktown and his overjoyed family.

Once there, little Eric was treated for cuts, scratches and mild dehydration.

He was released from the hospital to recuperate at home seven days later.

"The news that Eric was alive hit Mrs. Taylor like a ton of bricks," said a police spokesman, noting that the woman has denied all interview requests.

"She started crying and raced to the hospital to see him."

The plucky tot told doctors that he ate bugs and sucked dew off leaves to quench his hunger and thirst during his six-month nightmare.

He also said he was "scared

Circus elephant saves dog's life in train wreck!

Powerful pachyderm lifts 50-ton boxcar — so German shepherd can crawl out!

A tragic circus train wreck that claimed dozens of human and animal lives has left one good thing in its wake: The touching friendship between a dog who was trapped under a boxcar and the hero elephant who saved his life!

By A. NEALS LIND
Special correspondent

Hans, a German shepherd who stars with Kurtz's Amazing Dogs, and Blum, a performing elephant, have been inseparable since the fateful day when Blum heroically lifted the fallen boxcar off the dog's hind legs.

"Those two are like smoke and fire," says Carl Schmidt, ringmaster and part owner of the popular Schmidt-Blumgart Circus.

"You never see one without the other. They eat together, play together, they even watch each other perform during the show."

Their friendship is an inspiration to the other members of the traveling circus, many of whom lost close friends in the 1991 accident.

The friendship began when the train carrying the circus from Mannheim to Frankfurt, Germany, collided with a truck and overturned about six miles south of the tiny town of Darmstadt.

Twenty-six people and 14 animals were killed. Blum was thrown clear of the elephant car but was badly shaken and bleeding.

As he staggered away from the crash, he heard Hans' pitiful yelps and saw that the dog was helplessly pinned beneath the boxcar he'd been riding in.

Using all of his fading strength, the mighty elephant lifted the 50-ton car long enough for Hans to crawl out and escape.

Though Hans still walks with a slight limp, the circus vet says both animals have made great physical and emotional recoveries.

"Circus animals are usually

Both animals learn better when the other is around so they're even allowed to sit in on each other's training sessions.

"I never thought I'd see anything good or beautiful come from that heartbreaking crash," says Wilhelm Kurtz, who trains Hans.

Vatican orders investigation into miracle!

A Catholic priest at the Vatican in Rome has revealed that he visited both heaven and hell when he was taken on a tour of the planets — by two guardian angels!

Pope John Paul II has ordered an investigation into the claim by renowned scholar Father Pablo Martini that he had a miraculous out-of-body visit to the moon, two planets and the Sun.

"I don't know why God singled me out for this holy experience," Father Martini said in an interview at Castel Gandolfo, the Pope's private retreat southeast of Rome.

"Perhaps He has something special in store for me that required my visits to heaven and hell. Perhaps he merely wants me to tell the world what I saw with my own eyes."

Father Martini said the angels — Nicolaus and Christopharos — first took him to the moon, which he described as a gray wilderness soiled only by the "space junk" left behind by U.S. astronauts.

He said the second stop on his galactic tour was to Mercury, where he entered limbo, the place where unbaptized children — and the adults who lived and died before the time of Jesus — must stay until judgment day.

"Heaven is the planet Venus, a glorious place with pearlescent air and rainbow-hued fields of flowers stretching from horizon to horizon. I was met by a band of youthful angels of indescribable beauty who danced and sang while strewing flowers in my path.

"There were immense forests of golden trees hung with bunches of shimmering jewels. Babbling brooks with emerald green waters sweeter than any I've tasted on Earth meandered through the fields. It is truly the most beautiful place I've ever seen.

"And everywhere I looked I saw the faces of those who passed through the Pearly Gates. The peace and serenity in those faces is beyond description. It made my heart soar."

FATHER Pablo Martini

But his visit to the sun was anything but joyous!

"The sun is hell . . . the abode of fiction . . . the place where sinners suffer God's vengeance for all eternity," he said. "There is no beauty there, only unending pain and agony. And the heat is unbearable.

"From the moment I arrived until the moment I left, my ears were filled with the anguished screams and tortured cries of souls in torment. It is constant. There is no relief. It is the realm of the damned!"

The Vatican has declined to comment on Father Martini's extraordinary claim other than to issue a statement that the investigation is a "routine procedure" and that the priest has gone into seclusion at Castel Gandolfo "at the personal invitation of His Holiness."

"The Holy Father is doing what he must do when someone makes a claim of divine intervention," a Vatican spokesman explained. "It is for his protection as well as that of the church."

INSIDE STORY

Exclusive interview with TV personality, Dian Parkinson, reveals secret to her fabulous figure!

"Before EZ Krunch... I used to be a slave to sit-ups."

As told to Reid Evans

Dian Parkinson proves you don't have to go through physical and mental anguish to look sexy!

In fact, Dian looks every bit as fabulous today as she did 10 years ago, when she became a presenter on The Price is Right, and modeled her first swimsuit.

Q. How do you do it, Dian? How do you still look so sensational?

A. I can answer that question in just four words. A firm, tight stomach. That's what it takes to look really great...in or out of a swimsuit.

Q. So, is your secret some exotic kind of diet?

A. Definitely not. I believe in watching what I eat. But you can be slim, even skinny, and still look horrible if your stomach is soft and, you know, sticking out. No, my secret isn't just eating right, it's the EZ Krunch.

Q. It must be one of those huge, expensive stomach crunch machines you see in all the health clubs, right?

A. Wrong! It works like those machines, just like them, but it's not huge, and it's not expensive.

Q. So what's the big deal about it?

A. The big deal is, I'm not a slave to sit-ups anymore. After 8 years of doing sit-ups, the thought of doing even one more turned me off completely. That's why, the first time I tried EZ Krunch, I knew it was for me.

Q. What do you mean?

A. It's not that EZ Krunch doesn't take effort. It does. But it's a new and different way to work my stomach. And it's just exactly so boring.

Q. Why is that?

A. First of all, I use my EZ Krunch just 3 times a week, for only 5 or 6 minutes at a time...and what I really like about it is that I can use it sitting down in a chair while I'm watching TV. And so I replace many TV commercials, I do forward crunches for my upper abdominal muscles, knee-ins for my lower abs and a reverse crunch to work my waistline...all on my little buddy. That's when I call my EZ Krunch.

Q. Is there anything else you like about EZ Krunch, aside from the fact you don't have to do sit-ups anymore?

A. The padded handles and leg supports are comfortable, and because of it's easy back-and-forth rocking motion, I don't have to worry about straining my back or neck...and I like the way the 3 power bands let me increase the resistance from 30 pounds all the way up to 90 pounds. Would you recommend EZ Krunch?

A. I already do...all the time...to everyone I know who wants to have a firm, tight stomach...and especially to people like the who are bored with doing sit-ups. There's another reason why I've told all my friends about EZ Krunch. The price. It's only 3 easy payments of $19.95!

The secret's out! And now you can have a firm, tight stomach ...without ever doing another sit-up...and for only 3 payments of $19.95!

MIRACLE

Easy-to-make

By CLAUDIA GONSON / Special correspondent

Years of painstaking research have produced a miraculous new all-natural tea that cures everything from colds and allergies to heart trouble and high blood pressure — and you can make this amazing drink with ingredients from your local supermarket for pennies a day!

- Heart trouble
- Impotence
- Obesity
- Baldness
- High blood pressure
- Memory loss
- Deafness
- Hemorrhoids

The astounding discovery was made by family physician Dr. D.C. Jarvis, who spent more than 25 years in the backwoods of his native Vermont studying the ancient art of folk medicine.

The country doctor's book, Folk Medicine, gives this easy recipe for a miracle drink that will cure literally hundreds of ailments:

"Put two teaspoonfuls of honey and two teaspoonfuls of apple cider vinegar in a glass or cup of regular or decaffeinated tea. Drink one or more times a day as needed. The blend is not only healthful, it tastes delicious."

It's that simple!

You can get the tea, honey and apple cider vinegar in any grocery store. Because the ingredients are inexpensive, and the doses are small, the brew costs just pennies a day.

And here are just a few of the complaints Dr. Jarvis has found the miracle tea will cure:

■ Impotence: Men who have been told is impotent for years have regained full sexual vigor after drinking one glass of the miracle tea at each meal for a period of two months.

■ Chronic headaches: To relieve head and neck pain, place tea in a pot on the stove and bring to a slow boil. Remove from heat and sniff steam slowly until headache is gone.

● Heart trouble: Dr. Jarvis believes a glassful of his miracle tea morning and night is one of the best tonics for heart disease known to man.

● Baldness: A single cup or glass of miracle tea daily ends hair loss and stimulates the growth of new hair, as well as clearing up itching and dryness of the scalp, giving the skin a healthy youthful glow.

■ Muscle tension: Massage tea with oil the honey directly into aching muscles. Stubborn responds to the same treatment.

● Cold hands and feet: Miracle tea increases circulation to the hands and feet and prevents coldness in the hands and feet and preventing feet from falling asleep.

● Insomnia: A nightly dose of miracle tea has a calming effect, curing troublesome insomnia, bringing a deeper, more restful sleep. You will notice that you are less nervous. Decaffeinated tea is best.

● Brittle bones and nails: Miracle tea provides a healthy dose of calcium. Studies show that blood calcium content will rise immediately and remain high for 24 hours after the patient drinks a single glass of the tea — creating stronger bones and nails.

● Obesity: Dr. Jarvis has found that sipping two teaspoonfuls of the miracle tea at each meal can produce a weight loss of up to 10 pounds a month.

■ Fatigue: Pour a tea teaspoonful of

TEA brew cures:

- Insomnia
- Dizziness
- Fatigue
- Allergies
- Muscle tension
- Constipation
- Varicose veins
- Headaches
- Burns
- Brittle bones
- Cold hands & feet

MEDICAL WARNING

Miracle tea is not a substitute for medication. Consult your physician before using.

the hand. Apply to arms, shoulders, chest, stomach, back, upper and inner legs, and finally the feet. Do not towel dry — the tea dries quickly.

● High blood pressure: A daily glass of miracle tea lowers blood pressure.

● Dizziness: Dizziness is often caused by an alkaline reaction in the urine. This can be cured by drinking two glasses of the tea each day.

● Sore throat: Gargle a mouthful of the tea every hour and swallow after gargling.

● Allergies: Bothersome itchy fever and runny nose, itching and skin rashes caused by allergic reactions can be immediately eased by drinking a daily glass of miracle tea.

● Constipation: A daily glassful of the tea keeps the digestive tract healthy and regular.

● Colds, flu and coughing: A glass or cup of miracle tea as needed.

● Burns: Apply miracle tea — without the honey — directly to the affected area, and massage gently with fingers.

The tea relieves smarting and prevents formation of blisters.

● Deafness: A 63-year old man with 10 percent hearing loss drank three cups of miracle tea a day until his hearing improved to nearly normal.

● Varicose veins: To shrink varicose veins, apply tea — without the honey — to the veins morning and night.

● Memory loss: Three glasses of miracle tea daily can increase your brainpower and dramatically sharpen your memory.

● Hemorrhoids: A single glass of miracle tea in the morning has been known to cure the pain of hemorrhoids in as little as a week.

Those are just a few of the hundreds of ills that miracle tea can cure, Dr. Jarvis says.

Apple cider vinegar alone is an excellent antiseptic, curing passes by shingles, impetigo, ringworm and bedsores.

TERROR TRIP!

Schoolgirl, 16, spikes teacher's candy with LSD!

By RICK TRACY
Correspondent

Straitlaced teacher Martin Lock took a trip he'll never forget — when a student laced his candy with LSD.

An hour after eating the drugged candy, Martin hallucinated, threw books around the classroom and tried to climb the walls before collapsing in a heap.

"My books looked like they were all over the place. I felt they were falling apart and asked some pupils to help me put them together again," said Martin, 40.

"They looked at me and suppose said, 'You're tripping, sir.'"

The unsuspecting religion teacher didn't have a clue that he was about to be the butt of a joke when a 16-year-old schoolgirl offered him a piece of candy.

"I'm a sucker for sweets, so I ate it," Martin recalled. "Shortly, I began to feel odd. My arms and legs felt tingly and heavy and I began stuttering."

The out-of-control teacher was rushed to the rubber room at a Bristol, England, hospital where the "trip" continued for 12 more wild and crazy hours.

Martin has recuperated with no lasting effects from the classroom ordeal. But he's taking a lot of teasing from snickering students who ask, "Did you have a nice trip?"

The teenage girl who gave him the laced candy has been suspended from school.

HOW TO MAKE YOUR HOME THE HAPPIEST IN THE WORLD!

You can achieve greater happiness in your home by getting your family to work together, say two experts who offer tips for encouraging team spirit.

"The family that works together, with everyone pulling in the same direction, is more successful and happy than the family that doesn't," said Dr. Wallace Denton, author of the book Family Problems and What to Do About Them.

By MICHAEL ANDREWS
Correspondent

He offered these tips to parents who want to make their homes a happier place to live and work together:

● When assigning tasks to the children, explain exactly what you expect. Be consistent in enforcing your desires. If Santa is supposed to make his bed, but most days is the last when the [illegible] mom is no [illegible] encouraging. Same to "forget" more often.

● Negotiate what the penalty will be if someone fails to obey instructions. If Johnny comes home an hour late, the family might agree that his penalty will be to come home an hour early next time.

Marriage counselor Dr. Bess Owen also agrees that "families that work together are happier families." Dr. Owen offered these suggestions:

● Assign family goals when possible. Say, for example, that you want to reduce your utility bills and the children want more allowance. Offer them part of the money you will save if [illegible] in conserving the household water, gas and electricity.

● Make a game out of chores. See who can mow the lawn the fastest and keep the cleanest the coolest.

● Let all volunteers help. If your 4 year old daughter wants to wash the dishes, resist the temptation to say "no" because you feel she's too little.

● Let everyone contribute ideas when making major decisions. Family members are more willing to cooperate if they feel they've contributed something to the final decision.

● Use praise to [illegible] Parents should reinforce [illegible] children when they do a good job. Showing appreciation of your kids and your children will result in a family that works together more willingly.

Radio shock-jock Howard Stern's latest outrage:

I HOPE ARSENIO GETS AIDS!

WILD MAN Howard Stern has a mouth like an evil weasel. Stern's bare his unkindest cuts at Johnny Carson, Cindy Crawford and Rush Limbaugh.

NO wonder talk show host Arsenio Hall looks shocked. Howard Stern just wished him dead in his new book, Private Parts.

Radio's resident bad boy Howard Stern socks it to a bunch of celebrities he hates in his sensational new book, Private Parts.

America's grossest national product blasts everybody from Arsenio Hall to Yoko Ono and takes an incredibly cheap shot at TV legend Johnny Carson while he's at it.

Here's Howard, foaming at the mouth:

● Johnny Carson — "I look at Johnny Carson and I see just another Hollywood phony. I loved that crying routine on the air when his son died off the side of a cliff.

"Let's face it, this was no Father of the Year. You love your kids. Well, how about that little love grandchild you've got whom you refuse to acknowledge?"

● Arsenio Hall — "So many of my black friends tell me they want to be there the day Arsenio gets AIDS. They want to be there the day they vote yellow. They're so elated moved by this triangle headed fool on. He is everything that is wrong with show business. He ass sucking up to anybody who comes on the show. I wish the AIDS virus on him."

● Cindy Crawford — "I want to be there the day Cindy Crawford gets into a disfiguring car accident and Richard Gere has to live out his years staring at a legless, toothless, breastless Cindy Crawford."

● Madonna — "By the time her documentary Truth or Dare came out, I had had it with this jerk."

● Rush Limbaugh — "Look, anytime you see a guy who weighs like three hundred pounds, you know we're not talking about emotional health."

● Chevy Chase — "This one is a really sad case. Chevy Chase is pathetic. He's palling around on the golf courses now with Gerald Ford, the doofus President he used to make fun of."

● Yoko Ono — "Yoko's overhandling everything of John Lennon's. Coffee mugs, everything. Hey Yoko, anyone there? Is anyone there? Is anyone home?"

HOW HANON'S HOLLYWOOD

COUNTRY songbird Reba McEntire is trying to be more serious.

● Reba McEntire — "I play a character called Ma Tex and I'm married to Stan Aykroyd in the movie," says Reba, who's also readying to release her second Greatest Hits album.

"The movie's about a kid who divorces his parents and has from July 4 to Labor Day to find a new set of parents. We're the final set he tries out. It's a real good family project. It'll be out in April '94."

After his role in The Fugitive, Tommy Lee Jones is so hot he may never have to punch cattle again, but if worse comes to worst, he's ready to ride bord.

"There are plenty of ranches I can go to and get a job," says Tommy Lee.

Wacky Roseanne tells 15-year-old girl: BEING A GAY IS OK!

Domestic goddess Roseanne is moonlighting as an agony aunt in the five Iowa weekly newspapers that she and hubby Tom Arnold own.

What qualifies her to be the Dear Abby of the Hawkeye state, asked one reader. "Shut up, loser!" was Roseanne's terse answer. To a 15-year-old who fears she's a lesbian, Roseanne wrote: "Others may tell you different, but being a lesbian is okay! In general, they are great people!" Roseanne said

I'm not afraid to work. Even if you're my age and have a wife and two children, there are some places that will give you a place to live."

JFK Jr. and Daryl Hannah are no longer tiptoeing.

Jr. looked unshakable at his cousin Teddy's wedding recently.

Not only that, he's been arguing with his blonde beanpole a lot lately and complaining about her to his friends.

Also, John-John usually escorts his mother to family affairs, but neither Jackie nor sister Caroline attended this nuptial.

Gossip czarina Cindy Adams says Mom and Sis were no-shows precisely because Daryl was there.

WEDDING bells won't be ringing for JFK Jr. and Daryl Hannah.

Marilyn Quayle knows why people think she's a lot smarter than hubby Dan. "He's blond," she explains. "Yeah, blonds have more fun. That's why Madonna dyed her hair. If I was a blondy with the same demeanor, people would have a totally different attitude toward me."

America's oldest teenager, Dick Clark, says hogwash to the theory that violence is being fueled by rap videos now on MTV.

"If you dig up all the lies from the '50s, you'll see the same sort of comments," says the 64 year-old American Bandstand man.

"You might not like the lyrical content, but it doesn't cause people to commit suicide or beat anybody up.

"Life is not always easy, and music is a form of protest. It reflects what's going on, but it doesn't cause it. Music is such an easy scapegoat."

Knowing Shade star Charles Durning's foolish heart almost cost him his life during WWII.

"I was in the first wave of GIs to hit Omaha Beach," recalls Durning. "Later I was crossing a field somewhere in Belgium. A German soldier ran toward me carrying a bayonet.

"He couldn't have been more than 14 or 15. I didn't see a soldier. I saw a boy.

"Even though he was running at me, I couldn't shoot."

Durning's reluctance to kill a boy almost got himself killed. The kid stabbed him eight times in the arm, right shoulder and back.

He was hospitalized and released just in time to take part in the Battle of the Bulge.

Hudson Hawk, the Bruce Willis action-adventure flick, was savaged by the critics and was considered to be a major flop — but, surprise! The 1991 movie made money.

"Hudson Hawk is in profit.

"Nobody's interested in that," says Willis wryly.

"With this whole turmoil about Hawk, I realized I didn't want to have people say nice things about me.

"It would be great if I trying. But I don't need it. The gift I got from Hudson Hawk was that I don't expect another good review."

Woman heals the sick — with medicine from outer space!

SPECIAL formula given to Lupe Garcia by space aliens has cured everything from terminal cancer to congenital blindness.

By R. MIKE LING Correspondent

GUADALAJARA, Mexico — A woman from a small village has healed thousands of sick and suffering people by brewing herbal medicines — using formulas given to her by space aliens!

SHE'S CURED THOUSANDS WITH COSMIC BREW!

That's the contention of scores of Mexican doctors who say they've used Lupe Garcia's homemade potions to cure everything from terminal cancer to congenital blindness.

"Mrs. Garcia's medicines are nothing short of miraculous," says Dr. Carlos Perez.

"Nearly one of the hundreds of people I've given them to has improved dramatically. Even dying patients who I'd thought were hopeless are now symptom-free."

Credit for the medicines' effectiveness, Mrs. Garcia, a quiet, humble woman, says she deserves not a bit. She says the credit should go to the "city people" — her word for space aliens.

"The city people have been appearing to me since I was 16," says the 38-year-old housewife from Santa del Via. The tiny village is located in an area where hundreds of UFO sightings are reported every year.

"They tell me what herbs and how much water to put into the brews and they tell me what sicknesses each one will cure."

For years, only the Santa del Via villagers knew of her medicines. But slowly the word began to spread. Skeptical doctors began hearing about the mysterious cures.

"I'd heard rumors about a Santa del Via woman who was healing people with homegrown concoctions," he says. "But I'm a trained physician. I wasn't interested in anything so unscientific."

However, when one of his heart patients was on the operating table undergoing conventional treatments, Dr. Perez sighed out of desperation, to try one of Mrs. Garcia's miracle cures.

"The patient had been too weak to get out of bed," says Dr. Perez. "But just hours after drinking the potion, he was up walking the hospital halls, demanding to be released."

After that, Dr. Perez began to use Mrs. Garcia's medicines regularly, giving them to patients with goiters, arthritis, obesity, even diphtheria victims. And incredibly, every patient has recovered.

Now, Dr. Perez is one of Mrs. Garcia's biggest boosters. He has even set up a clinic in Guadalajara to dispense the herbal concoctions all over the country, praising Mrs. Garcia's shelf-knowledge to his colleagues. At this point, it's estimated that more than 3,000 people have been healed thanks to the mysterious elixirs. Although some in the medical community question her contention that the formulas come from space aliens, most doctors believe her.

"Why would she lie?" asks Dr. Luis Morales of Mexico City. "Here we have a simple woman with no formal education producing medicines that the greatest laboratories in the world have been unable to create. If you've got a better explanation, you tell it to me. Until then, I'll take her at her word."

By ED ANGER

Today's athletes are a bunch of whining, overpaid SISSIES!

I'm happier than Babe Ruth with a case of beer that the boring old World Series is finally history.

BABE RUTH

...last Sunday night on the tube, but that matter!

And my wife Donna Jean complain, or happier. We're doing things on weekends like families used to: hikes, picnic outings, picnics and fishing trips and visiting the neighbors.

And furthermore, the National Basketball Association can go to hell, as far as I'm concerned.

In fact, most of those guys aren't really as tall as they say they are — they're just sitting on their wallets.

And come on. If you were a fan, I'll bet you wouldn't have much trouble dropping a ball through the basket, either. Let's take the hoop to 20 feet and see how good those big babies are then.

Maybe if we all stop watching these so-called sports they'll get back to the way God intended them to be — men playing great

You can be a sexy woman at ANY age

LOVELY Jilly Johnson will still be sexy at 60!

You can be a sexy woman regardless of your age, says a leading psychiatrist.

Sexiness is a frame of mind independent of age, declares Dr. Stark Rubinstein.

"Some girls are sexy at 16. Some women are sexy at 60.

"It is important to be sexy with dignity. Looking and acting cheap is not sexy," he said.

Dr. Rubinstein offers readers these tips on how to be sexy at any age:

● Think. Think and act your age. "If you're 60, act 60. If you're 60 and 16 is a 16-year old being made up and trying to make sense as if she's 30."

● Leave your cares behind. "Try not to think of your problems and concentrate totally on the man you're with," Dr. Rubinstein advised.

"There's nothing sexy about a frowning, harried-looking person worrying about what she is going to fix for lunch next week or who her landlord is mad at."

● Give up affectations such as smoking or drinking. "There's nothing sexy about a woman whose clothes and breath smell of cigarettes. Drinking brands of liquid pills is not the way to be sexy. Nothing is as sexy as a drunk or doped woman."

● Be yourself and sexy. Here is more. "It may be something that will be sexy when you're 60 and not sexy when you're 16," Dr. Rubinstein said. "It may be something that will be sexy — and that can't be sexy — and that can't be sexy when you're not dressing it."

● Don't talk too much or too little. "A woman who never shuts up is as obnoxious as a woman who never opens her mouth," Dr. Rubinstein added.

Dolly Reed Wagman, fashion expert and author of The 90s Work Wear Woman's Work Wear Plan, added these suggestions on how to be sexy:

● Find yourself a hairstyle. "If you don't find yourself attractive in the mirror, how the devil can you be attractive to anyone else?"

● Keep yourself moisturized. "I can tell exactly how old many women are by the state of their lipstick and their hair," Mrs. Wagman said. "I suppose from a time when they were probably the happiest time when graduating from high school or college. And they're 30 now."

Tortoise vs. hare in real-life race

Contestants in Cape Town, South Africa, took an incredible two days to finish a 1,000-to-1 shot beat the favorite on a bigger race — between a tortoise and a hare.

"The hare broke to the lead from the finish line and watched in agony as the tortoise crept past him," said a spectator who bet on the race.

SHAPE OF YOUR EARS REVEALS YOUR PERSONALITY

The shape of your ears reveals your true personality!

Traits like the thickness and size of your lobes and the structure of your ear itself are incredible clues to your inner nature, according to Louis Marchand of Bordeaux, France, a world renowned aurologist.

"It's a great way of learning about yourself and others," says the ear expert. "Ears are almost as distinctive as fingerprints. If you know what to look for, you can tell a tremendous amount about a person."

Dr. Marchand says ears can be divided into four categories — the Lion Ear, the Cattle Ear, the Monkey Ear and the Wolf Ear — and each has a distinct set of characteristics.

LION EAR

● The Lion Ear: This ear has lots of earlobe, with almost no lobe. It can stick out from the head and has a smooth, flat rim.

People with Lion ears tend to be strong leaders.

They don't allow their emotions to sway them.

Lions are quick to make decisions and slow to change their minds. They have a high tolerance for pain — both physical and emotional — and most of them tend to be athletic.

On the negative side, Lions can be stubborn and opinionated, sometimes belittling people with ideas or beliefs unlike their own. Napoleon, Julius Caesar, Joan of Arc and Attila the Hun had Lion ears.

CATTLE EAR

● The Cattle Ear: This ear is wide and rounded at the top and has a thick lobe. It is usually flat and sits close to the head. The rim folds down.

Cattle people are quiet, thoughtful and patient. They're organized in a rut and tend to be philosophical and spiritual by nature. They are controlled and rarely act on impulse and will think for days before making the smallest decision. They make excellent bookkeepers, scientists and writers.

Cattle traits include lack of humor and physical abilities. They can make boring lovers and they're notoriously tightwads. Edgar Allan Poe, Thomas Edison and famous nurse Florence Nightingale were Cattle people.

● The Monkey Ear: — This is a flashy, angular ear. It is usually narrow with a thin lobe.

People with Monkey ears are outgoing, talkative and constantly on the go. They seem to have a hundred things on

On the other hand, they have difficulty finishing what they start and can't be depended on to remember appointments. They can be irresponsible and occasionally insensitive to others. Albert Einstein, Babe Ruth, Nero and Catherine the Great were Monkey people.

They tend to get their way by using their wits and "playing politics."

If that doesn't work, they'll resort to open warfare. They care very little what others think of them and can be very brave in speaking out against injustice when others are afraid to say anything.

Surefire ways to sidestep crushing disappointments!

Life's disappointments can lead to dejection, depression and heartbreak — but you can spare yourself this misery if you follow certain steps, says noted psychiatrist Dr. Jack Leedy.

Being passed over for a promotion, the loss of a loved one and losing [illegible] from your job are the kinds of major disappointments that can make you despondent and angry.

"All too often, the hard knocks we take in life can lead to a broken heart, and with it feelings of depression and hostility," says Dr. Leedy.

"But there are some simple steps you can take to avoid heartbreak — no matter how great the sorrow."

There are Dr. Leedy's suggestions to help you overcome disappointments:

● Exercise your nerves away. "Physical activities like jogging or running are very good for getting rid of the feeling of being wronged, but tennis and other racquet games like squash or racquetball are especially beneficial," Dr. Leedy says.

"Imagine your racquet is a club and your opponent is your boss. Really whack that ball and let your hostility express itself.

"This will help you cope with heartbreaking disappointment — and it also beats getting out your boss in the neighborhood bar."

● Talk things over with a friend. Let your friend take the role of the boss who fired or didn't promote you, and let him hear all your grievances.

● Keep your brain active. "This can also help you avoid depression and heartbreak," explains Dr. Leedy.

"Be creative. Write, paint or even dance. You might consider taking up a musical instrument."

● Don't suffer in silence. "Let people know you've been hurt," recommends Dr. Leedy. "Weather, get it off your chest. You may feel deep hostility, but the worst thing is not to brood.

"The people who suffer in silence are the ones who get ulcers or end up dying from cancer or heart disease."

JEALOUS WIFE'S GHOST IS WRECKING OUR MARRIAGE!

ARTIST CONCEPTION captures the terror as Harry and Marilyn Monday as the ghost drops a spider into Marilyn's drink.

'We even hear her laughing when we have sex,' says Kansas City couple

By LAUREL BOWIE

Flustered hubby Harry Monday and his devoted wife Marilyn are tossing in the towel on their six-month-old marriage because they're being pestered to death -- by a grouchy, jealous ghost!

Hapless Harry, 32, says the cranky ghost of his first wife Claudia is ruining his second marriage by nagging him and Marilyn night and day, playing sick pranks on them and giggling every time they make love.

"Claudia never gave me a moment's peace during the 11 years we were married," the lovelorn jobber told reporters in Kansas City. "And now that she's dead, she still won't leave me alone. Marilyn and I are crazy in love but we're splitting up because that stupid ghost has taken all the fun out of our life together.

The bride's tale began when the cigar-chewing Harry and his blushing bride tied the knot -- and cantankerous Claudia put in a surprise appearance at the wedding.

"Claudia was killed in a car crash a few years ago, and of course I never expected to hear from her again," the befuddled trucker recalled. "But the day Marilyn and I were married, right when I said 'I do,' someone started cackling at the back of the church. We turned and there was Claudia, big as life.

"Suddenly Claudia vanished, and we somehow managed to go on with the ceremony. But [illegible] has been hard at work turning the formerly carefree honeymoon into a couple of nervous wrecks.

"When we went to Spain for our honeymoon, that woman was always underfoot," recalled Marilyn, 26.

"Anytime we tried to get romantic, she giggled and ruined everything.

"It's been that way ever since. When my husband and I want to make love, she's always there laughing at us and calling us names and telling us how silly we look. Nobody could ex-old buddy like that in the room."

When the killjoy ghost isn't putting a crimp on the couple's cuddling, she's nagging them like a meddling mother-in-law or playing pranks designed to make their married life miserable.

"Claudia is constantly bugging poor Marilyn about the way she looks and even about the way she wears her hair," angry Harry said. "And she gets at me about everything, just like when she was alive. She was a mean woman, and now she's a mean ghost."

Frantic Harry and his bride have moved four times in six months, trying to escape the nasty phantom. But crabby Claudia has dogged them every step of the way.

"There's just no losing her," said disgusted Marilyn.

My wigged-out wife thinks she's God's gift to WOMEN!

Dear Wondering in Mahwah: Love may be an easy game to play, but in real life you've got to work at it!

Dear Disturbed in Selma: I don't know who told you to dance the other night, pinhead, but it sure as hell wasn't me!

Dear Surprising in Bayonne: I don't think I'm right, I know I'm right — you're nuts to shoplift cocaine!

Dear Curious in Kalamazoo: Why do Canadians make weird love, while Italians love with passion? What's that?

Dear Drunkard in Deer Park: You should have thought about that before you threw a rubber snake in your wife's bath!

Dear Darling in Portland: The best time your babies wants to play "find mom's nipple," tell him to leave the store keep out of it!

Dear Dotti: My wife of 21 years has been going through some changes and I don't know what to do about it. For one thing, she traded her modest dresses in for miniskirts and see-through blouses.

She dyed her blonde hair black. And to make matters worse, she's reached the conclusion that she wants to open up our marriage — and start dating women! I've tried to reason with her but she won't listen. In fact, she told me matter-of-factly that she's God's gift to the ladies. Help! — Upset in Exeter

Dear Upset: Your wife has lost her marbles. With that in mind, let her date all the ladies she wants ... AFTER the divorce, of course!

Today's bratty kids think we owe them a living!

Dear Dotti: I know you're pretty tough on children and I agree with you 100 percent. Kids today are real spoiled brats. They think the world owes them a living. And if the world doesn't give it to them, they steal what they want — or pout. What can be done to reverse this situation before it's too late? — Parent in Raleigh

Dear Parent: The business end of a flyswatter works wonders with snotty kids. It's also a good idea to give them all the love, support and education they need to become decent human beings like you and me!

Heck, Dotti, we're over 80 and still hot to trot!

Dear Dotti: In a recent letter, you said a 40-year-old woman that "major" She her sex life old to enjoy sex. I'll have you know that my mate and I are both over 80 and WE aren't over the hill. In fact, we enjoy sex more or twice a week and have no intentions of slowing down. Think about that before you shoot your mouth off, lady. Case closed! — Passing in Winston-Salem

Dear Passing: Once or twice a week? Call me spoiled, but if that was all the sex I got, I'd pull my hair out!

The boss passes gas and it's grossing me out!

Dear Dotti: I work with a guy who has gross personal habits. For one thing, he burps constantly. He also passes gas — quite noisily — 10 to 20 times a day. I'd say something to him, but he's the boss. Help! — Grossed-Out in Boston

Dear Grossed-Out: I don't have of this food in the form of gas! Tell him to stop his obnoxious behavior or else!

Am I cheap 'cause I put a hunk a bopped in the sack?

Dear Dotti: I'm 17 years old and just met this 18-year-old hunk. He asked me to go out with him. I said yes. Then he asked me to have sex with him. I said yes to that, too. Now I think I'm pregnant. Do you think I'm a slut? — Undecided in New York

Dear Undecided: I don't think you're a slut ... I think you're a fool. Anybody who has unprotected sex in this day and age is asking for all kinds of trouble — including unwanted babies, herpes and AIDS!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33464.

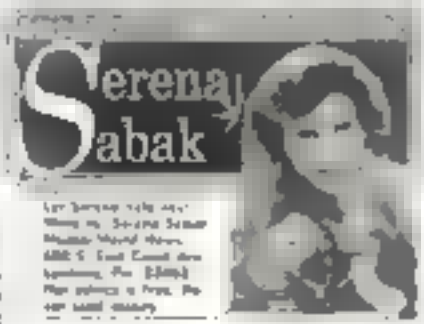
Can you find my $13 million lottery ticket?



Dear Serena: I recently asked you to give me some lucky numbers and used them to win a $13 million lottery jackpot.

Unfortunately, I lost the ticket and can't find it anywhere. Without proof, I'll never be able to collect the money. Please tell me where I can find the ticket, Serena. I promise to use the money to help other people. — Desperate in Miami

Dear Desperate: Your toddler son Jimmy ate the ticket, so you'll never be able to collect on it. KISS OF DEATH!

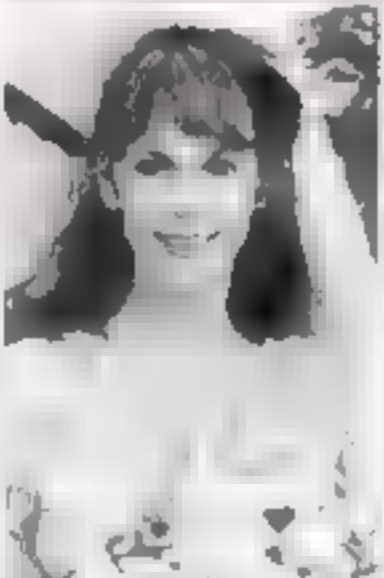
Bride chokes on groom's tooth at wedding reception!



Starry-eyed bride Sarah Keitel kissed her new hubby Hans so passionately during their wedding reception that she sucked a loose tooth from his mouth — and choked to death on it!

"It happened so fast, I still can't believe she's really dead," sobbed heartsick Hans, 35.

"It's crazy you know. One minute we were so happy, drinking champagne with our friends and dreaming about our honeymoon in Majorca — and the next minute she's lying there on the floor with one of my teeth stuck in her windpipe.

"She was so beautiful, so wonderful to die that way."

The tale of the killer kiss began earlier in the day when the jubilant groom-to-be smashed up his car on his way to the wedding.

"I was so excited I must've stepped on the gas too hard, because I went over a curb and crashed into a big steel mailbox on the sidewalk," shell-shocked Hans told reporters in Hamburg, Germany.

"It wasn't too bad, but I banged my mouth on the steering wheel and knocked one of my upper teeth real loose.

"I knew it would have to come out pretty soon, but I wasn't about to stop at a dentist on my wedding day.

"I figured it wouldn't possibly hurt to let it wait a few days, so I just kind of ignored it."

But that proved a fatal mistake hours later when hapless Sarah, 31, kissed her husband during their recep-tion at a ritzy hotel and accidentally bit off his lower tooth.

"There were about 150 guests there and we were partying it up like crazy," the devastated salesman recalled.

"Then at one point my best man proposed a toast and the people started banging their spoons on their glasses, insisting that Sarah and I kiss each other — and we were more than happy to oblige.

"Sarah decided to really give them a show and she planted a kiss on me to end all kisses.

"Then suddenly she pulled away and made a funny little noise and ran out of the room.

"Everybody just stood there stunned, because we couldn't imagine what had happened. After a few seconds I went after her, but I couldn't find her.

"And by the time I finally did find her in a corridor around the corner, she was lying unconscious on the floor. I yelled and everybody came running, in-cluding a doctor friend of ours. And the minute he looked at her, he told me she was gone."

The grieving groom said he didn't learn how his bride had died until hours later.

"At some point in all the excite-ment, I noticed I'd lost the tooth, but I just never put it all together," he said.

"I never dreamed that I had killed the woman I love with a kiss."

But 307 passengers are still missing — and airline officials don't have the faintest idea what happened to them.

"Aeroeam is dedicated to providing the best possible service for customers but we admit there have been a few hitches," Karoly Milkovic, a spokesman for the airline, told reporters. "Passengers are missing, yes, and we don't know what happened to them.

"All I can say is that we are doing our best to correct the problems, find the passengers and fly them to their destinations.

"Meanwhile, we have good news to report along with the bad.

"For one thing, 85 percent of our flights have arrived safely at their proper destinations on schedule and all the luggage checked in has arrived intact and at the right place, which is certainly something to be proud of."

The fledgling airline's track record has been the butt of numerous and often vicious jokes in Russia and abroad but officials of all airlines — and could cost billions in lost revenue from people who decide not to fly for fear of getting lost in transit.

REINCARNATION SHOCKER

Reborn sex fiend strangles girl at same place he murdered first victim — 100 years earlier!

PHOTO OF SUSPECTED KILLER Hans Von Hollnagel in 1893. He was set free by a judge in 1893 — and in 1993! The evidence at his trial was insufficient to convict him of the brutal crimes.

By RICK TRACY / Correspondent

Leading psychologists believe a sex fiend who viciously raped and strangled a young woman in 1893 was reincarnated — and committed an identical crime 100 years later.

"There are so many incredible similarities between the two crimes that there is no other explanation," said Dr Klaus Specht, who has researched both hair-chilling murders and uncovered these startling coincidences:

● Both victims were 24 years old and named Anna.

● Both were murdered under the same oak tree, in Dun bridport, Germany, exactly 100 years apart.

● Both were raped and strangled on the same date, May 23 . . in 1893 and 1993.

● Both victims were wearing frilly dresses and were last seen leaving a dance.

● The suspected killers in both crimes were named Hans Von Hollnagel.

● In both cases, the suspected killer was let free by a judge for insufficient evidence.

● A rose was left at the scene of both grisly murders.

"The coincidences in the two cases are so fantastic that I have no doubt the brutal killer in the first murder was reborn and committed an identical slaying," said Dr Specht.

Records show that Anna Krueger was on her way home from a dance in 1893 when she was dragged under the oak tree, viciously assaulted and clubbed to death. Exactly 100 years later to the day, Anna Kastner was raped and strangled at the same spot.

"It is a clear case of reincarnation," said criminologist Franz Bunter. "Everything fits too well for it to be anything else."

Amazingly, an almost identical case of reincarnation murder occurred in England and was reported in Weekly World News Oct. 19, 1993 issue.

VICTIM Anna Krueger was assaulted and choked to death on May 23, 1893

In just a few years people will be able to travel anywhere in the world in minutes — by faxing themselves from one place to another!

The amazing new high speed travel technology called teleportation will be available by the year 2000, according to Swedish physicist Dr. Peter Sigmundson. It will operate much like current fax systems except that only human travelers, and not text, will move from place to place.

"The technology is extremely complicated and operates on the molecular level," said Dr. Sigmundson, 51, who heads a laboratory in Stockholm.

"It is still in the developmental stage but we have succeeded in teleporting 21 people so far without any harmful side effects — and some have even claimed to like it up in the cities.

"Naturally, the toy has cheese we are using are much larger than those that are currently used for commercial fax purposes.

"We expect that they will be smaller and more compact as we refine them and simplify the process.

"In 10 years they'll probably be in every home in the western world."

Dr. Sigmundson says he and his fellow researchers are currently using a teleportation machine which measures seven feet by four feet and contains thousands of microscopic capsule-like compartments that are capable of short, high-speed operations aimed at the disassembly and assembly of the human body at the atomic level.

"The speed is essential," Dr. Sigmundson said. "Human cells can be damaged in their passage through fiber optic cables if the process isn't instantaneous."

It has to be so fast that there isn't time for heat to generate.

The physicist said he has always dreamed of being able to teleport himself to the moon. He started experimenting with animals and moved up to humans after he had perfected the process.

"We still have a few glitches that need to be worked through," the scientist said.

"Last month one of our subjects arrived in Copenhagen (Denmark) with unexplained mud marks on his body. We need to know what caused a problem like that."

Dr. Sigmundson predicted teleportation systems will be available at special travel centers in the first decade of the 21st century and that they will be widely available to consumers five to 10 years later.

"This will revolutionize travel," he says. "It's going to be as important as the invention of the airplane."

The experts identified these seven myths, followed by the facts:

Blind schoolboy sees with his ears, nose & toes!

By DAVID ROSS

A blind Chinese schoolboy has stunned the medical world with his amazing ability to see — by using his ears, nose and big toes.

Amazing: Ng Kee Yu can read words and sentences by holding pages of paper to his ears, big toes and nose

...write the English letters ABC on a piece of paper, folded it six times and handed it to the boy, who held it up to his ear, then to his nose and finally to his toes," said Dr Lu.

After a few minutes, the youngster replied:

"There are three letters here, but I don't understand them. Give me a piece of paper and I'll copy them."

And he did. "I had to believe it," said one of the skeptics. "This was not magic but an extraordinary form of perception which man has not been able to identify."

Flights of fancy: Bird lovers pay $13,000 apiece for dancing pigeons

Bird fanciers in Kuwait raise pigeons for racing — and acrobatics.

"She's just like a dancer," grinned owner Walid al-Dejaimeen as one of his fancy dancing pigeons fluttered high above the Kuwaiti desert and then slowed, as if taking a deep breath.

The acrobatic bird started rolling backward, repeatedly somersaulting in a clear blue sky while her wings made rapid, sharp claps.

"A brilliant woman dancer can give a new meaning to your life, and so can a pigeon," he said.

Queen of the Wild Frontier!

By BEATRICE DEXTER / Correspondent

Lovable woodsman Davy Crockett wasn't a man at all, a top historian says — she was a girlsy gal named Daisy Crockett — Queen of the Wild Frontier!

That's the theory of revisionist historian Derek Altrewriter, a German specialist in pioneer America who has recently published a book on American frontiersmen.

"In the 18th Daisy lived ... did so told there was no way for a woman to lead an adventurous, outdoor life and Daisy was a real wild woman at heart," said Dr Altrewriter in a surreal article in a historical journal.

"So at about the age of 11 she began dressing like a boy. And when her parents died and left her an orphan at the senseless age of 14, Daisy changed her name to Davy and took over her dead man's identity."

Davy Crockett was really a woman!

1956: Tall Fess Parker played Davy Crockett on TV

From then on, Dr Altrewriter contends, the frontier hero lived like a guy, hunting in the wild forests of America, fighting the Indians and rassling and drinking up a storm with mountain-cap cronies like even married in Congress, where her battle image made her a popular figure.

No one suspected her true sex and no one questioned the fact that she never married. Dr Altrewriter says, because bachelorhood was common on the frontier.

"It was only after she died at the Alamo that they found out her true sex," Dr Altrewriter said.

"Official documents indicate they found a female among the dead and suspected strongly it was Davy, but by then time Davy Crockett was such a hero they just didn't want to disappoint the American people.

"We also know that Tennessee tax rolls show Crockett's parents gave birth to a girl in 1786. There are no records of a son, only daughters."

Dr Altrewriter hopes that his new book, that includes his theory about Crockett, will soon be translated to English and published in

HOW TO GET OUT OF A RUT — in 5 easy steps!

You can climb out of a rut and put a kick back in your life by following some simple suggestions from an expert.

By ERIC WHEELER
Correspondent

"Let's face it — we all get into a rut from time to time," says psychologist Dr. William Knaus. "We feel frustrated and unhappy. We feel we've failed to reach our potential in life.

"But it's important to know that you can get out of the rut."

Dr. Knaus offers these tips.

● Don't get mad at yourself for being in a rut. Get mad at whatever is causing the problem. "When you are hard on yourself, it usually doesn't work," the psychologist said. "You need to be hard on your problem. Look it over and see what you can do to make gains for yourself."

● Be specific about the areas of your life you want to change. "Most people who are in a rut say, 'I'm totally in a rut.' The reality is much more likely to be that only parts of their lives are not working well," Dr. Knaus said.

"Try to isolate the areas you'd like to change and work to change them. If you try to change your whole existence, you'll be throwing out a lot of good things along with the bad."

● Beware of rationalizations. "Sometimes when people get in a rut, they find themselves surrounded by prophets of doom, to whom life is rotten — a dog-eat-dog existence," he said. To avoid getting caught up with such persons, stay in a rut after joining people who love life."

● Pursue an activity. "Instead of sitting and wringing your hands, get up and take some kind of action that has meaning," Dr. Knaus said. "It can be training parrots, gardening, bowling, doing wood carvings, anything. Then you are rewarding only the activity rather than on the thoughts that were keeping you down."

● Develop a plan for yourself. Focus on alternative actions and carry them out. "If you can see that you have choices, you'll begin to see yourself as having hope for getting involved in new adventures.

"First, identify what has you in a rut. Then, search for alternatives. Finally, put those alternatives into effect. Once you've done that, you'll find you're no longer in a rut."

New study leaves the experts flabbergasted!

OFFICE ROMANCES IMPROVE JOB PERFORMANCE!

by R. NEALE LIND

Go ahead and have that on-the-job romance you've always wanted — experts say it can make you a better worker!

In fact, your workplace relationship may even improve the effective [illegible] of your entire organization.

That's the surprising finding of a survey by Professor James Dillard, communications expert from the University of Wisconsin-Madison who has been studying the effects of job site love affairs and related topics for eight years.

"This research runs counter to folk wisdom — the stereotype that these relationships are bad," says Prof. Dillard. "Most bosses try to discourage flirtations between their employees. But [illegible] in the evidence we've compiled, maybe they ought to reconsider."

The 38-year-old researcher began his study in 1981. He and his staff spoke with hundreds of people from all walks of life.

Many of them admitted they had been romantically involved with a co-worker.

Prof. Dillard says he had no preconceived idea of what the survey would show.

"We didn't start out to prove a theory," he says. "We just wanted to see if the conventional wisdom held water."

When all the data were analyzed, the results proved that for the people whose job performances had changed due to office romances, the overwhelming majority of them had taken a turn for the better.

And, surprisingly, the return [illegible] that people involved in on-the-job relationships tend to overcompensate," says Prof. Dillard.

"They work hard to show the boss and their fellow employees that the relationship is not hurting their work.

DON'T BE AFRAID TO HUG Having a red-hot romance in the office can turn you into a much more valuable employee

Experts say ... ENJOY LIFE — BY BEING MORE OBSERVANT

You can get much greater pleasure out of life by training yourself to be more observant, say two experts.

"You become more observant by heightening your senses," insists Dr. Herbert Otto, a noted marriage counselor and author.

Here are some ways to develop your powers of observation, according to Dr. Otto:

● Consciously identify something beautiful in your environment, such as a tree. Stay with that beauty for as long as you can. Then close your eyes and let it echo in your mind. Do this at least twice every day.

● Examine an everyday object, such as an apple, a matchbox or pencil. Place it very close to your eyes, turn it, get different angles on it.

● Use your sense of smell and touch. Step into a bakery, and just take in the smell. Go barefoot on your rug or touch the bark of a tree. Do these things with your eyes open, then repeat them with your eyes closed.

"Most important of all," agreed Dr. Frederick Koenig, a recognized authority in the field of psychology, "is to adopt the proper attitude.

"To become more observant you must shift the focus of your attention off yourself and onto others."

Dr. Koenig offered these tips to people wishing to hone their powers of observation:

● Take up a hobby that encourages observational skills.

"Jigsaw puzzles offer hours of practice in matching and fitting subtle colored pieces and selecting shapes which fit together."

"Charades is another game in which you must listen and watch very carefully."

● Pay more attention to others. "If you notice something different, mention it. 'You're wearing a new dress, you've changed your hair, you've switched cigarettes ...'

"Talking about the changes you see will bring a positive response from those around you. This will encourage you to further develop your observational skills."

MILLIONS

OF AMERICANS TALK TO THE DEAD — AND SO CAN YOU!

Dr. John Stanton says it will take at least a week of practice before you can rapidly communicate with a dead person

Millions of Americans talk to the dead every day — and so can you!

All you have to do is clear your mind of thoughts and worries and tune in to the invisible lines of communication that exist between the living and the dead.

With a little practice you'll be able to speak with dear friends and loved ones as well as the millions of other Americans who rely on the dead to give them advice and assistance on a daily basis.

It might sound far-fetched, but that is what Dr. John Stanton, whose exciting new book, Talking to the Dead, is expected to hit bookshelves next spring.

Studies suggest that as many as 120 million Americans communicate with dead relatives and loved ones every day. They rely on them for all kinds of advice, ranging from financial problems and career choices to lucky numbers to play.

"These people aren't just sick or crazy," he added. They're solid citizens like you and me. And if you want to learn how to talk to the dead, you can.

Exclusive tips from expert's new book!

By DOUGLAS MILLAND

In his new book, Dr. Stanton tells how Mrs. Ella of Los Angeles [illegible] a car crash that nearly killed her husband. Mr. Ella, a car salesman, was trapped in the wreckage of his car after it overturned on the Pacific Coast Highway.

Mrs. Ella, a housewife with no previous psychic experience, was able to contact her husband's spirit and receive instructions on how to free him from the wreckage. Mr. Ella escaped with only minor injuries.

Dr. Stanton, a psychiatrist who has been studying communication with the dead for more than 20 years, says that anyone can learn to do it.

"It's no more complicated than learning how to drive a car or play golf," he said.

■ Find a quiet place to sit or lie down. Close your eyes and clear your mind of all thoughts and worries.

■ When you feel perfectly relaxed, form a mental image of the person you want to communicate with in your mind.

■ After a few seconds, use that mental image of the person you want to communicate with. Do not put words in his mouth. Wait patiently for the reply.

UFO FOUND IN ICEBERG

Alien crew is missing & still at large, warn scientists!

By R. NEALE SIND

The captain of a ship rammed an iceberg in the frigid waters of the Greenland Sea — and found a perfectly preserved UFO frozen inside.

What's more, the alien crew is missing and they still be at large!

Scientists from all over the world have been summoned to an undisclosed location near the arctic circle [illegible] Greenland, to investigate the extraordinary find.

DR Stuber

"My colleagues and I have examined every inch of it and all the evidence suggests that the craft was discovered in a state of hibernation after apparently low reserves and crashed. However, we can find no trace of them."

The discovery occurred above the Arctic Circle between Norway and Greenland when a Swedish exploration ship struck a huge floating iceberg at about three p.m. on August 24. Thinking the ship was [illegible] the captain launched a large plow-out of the iceberg, revealing part of a strange [illegible]

When the crew chipped away enough ice to get a good look at it, it became [illegible] turned out to be the hull of a UFO.

[illegible] when the spaceship crash landed on Earth [illegible] caused an explosion, experts differ widely about the fate of the occupants. "This is dead," says Dr. Juan [illegible], noted Spanish biologist and member of the Stuber's staff. "Even if they survived the crash, there's no way they could stay alive in these sub-zero temperatures."

Dr. Stuber himself, however, is not so quick to declare the aliens dead. "The very fact that they piloted their spaceship to Earth [illegible] tells me that these aliens are very highly evolved," says the Norwegian author and physicist.

MILLIONAIRE COMMITS

MILLIONAIRE Brice Dietrich posed for the portrait with his only son Samuel — before heartbreaking sex-change.

By JOE BERGER · Staff writer

Moneybags businessman Brice Dietrich was dying for a son to carry on the family name. And after having nine daughters in a row, his weary wife Serena finally gave birth to the bouncing baby boy Brice so desperately wanted.

But triumph turned to tragedy [illegible] the millionaire dad blew his [illegible] out — after learning his beloved son Samuel had become a woman!

"When Brice learned Sam had sneaked off and had a sex-change operation, it was just more than he could stand," said sad-eyed Serena, 53.

GRIEVING widow Serena Dietrich

"He'd devoted his life to that boy and given him everything money could buy, dreaming of the day he would become a man and take his rightful place in the family business.

"And when he learned his only son had become just an other daughter, he grabbed a pistol out of the cabinet, took it into his study and shot himself right through the head."

Shell-shocked Samuel-turned-Samantha was devastated by the deadly effect his snip-and-tuck surgery had on his dad.

"But I had to do what my heart told me to do," said the Jekyll-y-wette-lately lady.

The heartbreaking tale began 30 years ago when Serena, a secretary, said "I do" to her first fiance at a Jewish wedding in Auckland City, New Zealand.

"The minute we got married — on our wedding night, in fact — Brice started talking about how badly he wanted a son to take over for him when he retired," the weeping widow said.

"He'd built his export firm from a little storefront business to a multimillion-dollar operation and he couldn't bear the thought of turning it over to somebody outside the family.

"He also would never have dreamed of turning it over to a woman, because he figured

How to stretch your leisure time!

By learning to get the most out of your leisure hours you can actually stretch the time you spend having fun, experts say!

Leisure is important as an outlet for tension, according to Dr. May Jane Hungerford, an expert on recreation. Unrelieved tension can cause such stress symptoms as temper tantrums, arthritis and allergies.

Here are her tips for fully enjoying your spare time.

● Develop some social skills. Swimming, dancing and playing tennis and bridge are among the most important skills, noted Dr. Hungerford.

● Get active in volunteer work.

"It will give you a great deal of enjoyment to contribute to your community by working with the PTA, a charity group, the Lions Club, Rotary, etc.," she said.

● Don't set goals for yourself. The person who takes up golf and then declares, "I'm going to break par," is setting a goal he almost

Call no longer harmless leisure [illegible] it becomes work, of [illegible] striving.

● Don't straitjacket your leisure with a strict routine. It will wreck your enjoyment because it will put you under a certain amount of pressure.

● Decide for yourself how you want to spend your spare time. Don't let social pressure or family circumstances decide it for you.

● Experiment to discover how you can most enjoy your leisure. Try something new and find out if you enjoy it.

A change of pace will also boost your leisure enjoyment, says Dr. Marvin Rosenblatt, a practicing psychologist.

"If your work keeps you bound to a desk during the week, go in the other direction on weekends and take part in outdoor activities," suggests Dr. Rosenblatt.

Street-corner striptease earns college gal $10,000!

A college girl who performed a spur-of-the-moment striptease in front of her favorite bar got the surprise of her life — when a stranger walked up and gave her a check for $10,000!

"This really well dressed guy told me I was the sexiest woman he had ever seen and he wanted me to have a little gift," 18-year-old Hanna Hoyer told reporters in Munich, Germany. "I couldn't believe it when I looked at the check.

"The strangest thing of all is that I didn't even get to thank the guy because he hopped in a limo and was gone just like in a flash.

So, in his desperate quest to sire a son, the stubborn hubby pressured long suffering Serena into bearing 10 children in 12 years - till they finally celebrated the birth of little Samuel.

"Brice treated Sam like a prince," Serena revealed. "From the day he was born, he got the best of everything — the fanciest clothes, the finest schools, everything.

"Brice loved his girls, but Samuel was his pride and joy — the boy destined to carry on the Dietrich name.

"I recognized from the time Sam was 13 that he was having drastic problems with his sexuality, but every time I tried to talk to Brice about it, he just refused to listen. He thought the kid could do no wrong."

The unsuspecting pop got the shock of his life, though, the day his son came home from college wearing high heels and a pink dress — and sporting a 36-inch bust.

"Brice was absolutely be-side himself," heartsick Serena told a reporter. "I had never seen him so angry.

"He screamed and cursed and I thought he was going to beat Sam to death on the spot — but he never laid a hand him. He just went and got a gun and blew his brains out.

How to survive a marriage crisis!

Husbands and wives can learn how to survive a marital crisis and strengthen their relationship at the same time by following a few simple tips, say two leading experts.

By MARY CRANDELL
Correspondent

Dr. Fredrick Humphrey, a family relations expert, said that a certain amount of conflict and fighting are normal. "But rather than striving to avoid them at all costs, learn how to fight constructively.

"There are times when it makes sense to keep your mouth shut rather than generating more anger and hurt by saying what you feel. Don't pretend the problem isn't there. Face up to it."

Learn to recognize the beginning of a problem — and don't overreact to your spouse's behavior, he continued.

"If your husband suddenly goes quiet, accept that as his way of coping with stress and don't say 'He doesn't love me anymore' during times of crises, the marriage can be further solidified if each partner tries to be understanding, accepting and supportive of the other person's feelings."

Dr. Humphrey said couples who are prepared for crises are better able to survive them.

"Not spending your last dollar can take the edge off financial problems, and learning something about first aid can make it easier to handle accidents. "The better prepared people are for crises, the less impact they will have on the marital situation."

Dr. Hugh Creedon, a recuperated psychologist, advised: "Couples should practice communicating before crises occur. Then when problems do arise, it will be considerably easier. Couples should find something they enjoy doing together like taking up a new hobby. And the whole family should do things together such as playing games."

Dr. Creedon added that when a problem arises, "don't stop blaming the other person for what's gone wrong. It's better to approach the situation by saying that neither partner is to blame, but there's a problem so let's decide what we can do about it."

"Don't overreact to a crisis. For example, if a child's grades drop from an A to a B, don't upbraid the whole family. Don't overreact to a crisis. Mother's on the kid's back and father is hollering at mother to leave him alone. They blow things out of proportion and create the crisis."

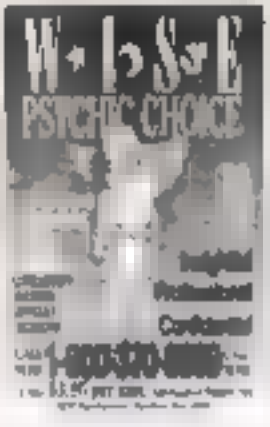
Summing up, Dr. Creedon observed, "You have to build a solid foundation as you go along so when a crisis occurs you have something behind you to help you survive it."

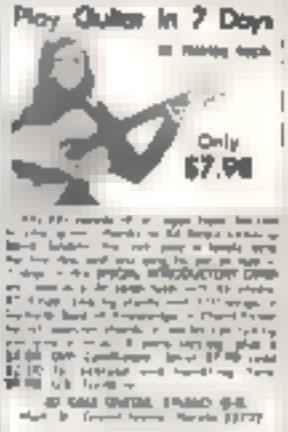
Pickle packers use hammers to fill jars!

Ever wonder how they get all those pickles crammed in each jar you buy at the store? They pound them in with rubber mallets, that's how!

"I spend 10 years of my life standing at a table, hammering dill pickles into one jar after another," said a retired pickle packer in an interview.

"It hasn't been anything much — but where would pickle jars be without us?"





ROACHES INVADING RITZY SUBURBS!

Hungry insects hotfoot it from the slums — in search of fancier foods

CHICAGO — America's cockroaches are getting so finicky about the food they eat that they're shattering out of the slums and moving into mansions and townhouses — so they can rip off rib-eyes and roast pheasant instead of beans and burnt toast!

"We have more than 800 trillion cockroaches in this country and suddenly they all want to move to the suburbs or uptown where the rich folks live — and where they can get gourmet table scraps," said insect expert Dr. Kellin Murdoch.

"For some reason that no scientists don't yet understand, we have a new breed of gourmet cockroach.

"They just don't taste good enough for them anymore.

"Now they've gotta have steak and roast turkey and caviar and Mister with cheese fondue — which is good news for the people in the mansions and on Park Row but very bad news for the fat cats in Palm Beach and Beverly Hills."

Cockroach researchers discovered 10 years ago that the beady-eyed creatures were turning out of the ghettos and taking up residence in the fancier areas of town.

But only recently did they learn that the pesky pests had developed a real hankering for highbrow chow.

"For a number of years we knew this was going on but we didn't know why," Dr. Murdoch said. "But now [illegible] through high-tech testing [illegible] we've shown that many of these cockroaches [illegible] junk food — the day-to-day counter of pork and beans and even hamburger — stuff they used to love.

"Now when they want a bit midnight or private rib or roast duckling. For bugs, they're really getting picky as hell."

It's a tough, multibillion-dollar problem with which to deal — and one with a much greater significance than the pesky bugs themselves.

So far we've all known we've got them. It's almost impossible to get rid of them short of burning the whole place down. Dr. Murdoch said.

"The best thing might be to start calling the stuff gourmet cat — and hope the roaches will leave out to look for something fancier."

"COCKROACHES want to move in where rich folks live," says Dr. Kellin Murdoch.

Mom helps serial killer murder his victims!

KIEL, Germany — Weeping mom Hilda Schmidt admitted she loved her only son so much that she invited beautiful young women to her fashionable home — so he could rape, torture and murder them.

"I knew my boy was a preacher [illegible] self," Hilda tearfully told police. "He is all I had in the world and I didn't want to lose him."

"I lured 11 unsuspecting women to my house knowing they would never leave there alive," she said. "I can't deal with the cruel sorrows."

Schmidt, and her sicko son Detlef, 23, have been charged with murdering 11 women whose butchered bodies were buried on Hilda's property.

The doting mother had always given her spoiled son anything he wanted — even her husband died in 1984.

"I couldn't say 'no' if he asked for a car, women, clothes or expensive jewelry," she said.

Detlef, 23, is charged with murdering 11 women between the ages of 18 to 32. All were raped, tortured and mutilated with a cattle-bolt pistol and a butcher's knife before Hilda ended their torment with a bullet in the head.

Hilda realized the unsuspecting victims to her luxurious home by advertising in a newspaper for a maid. Within 24 hours they were

...E. MEALLIND

Americans will soon be able to get a college education overnight without ever opening a book, attending a lecture or setting foot in a classroom!

Scientists say in less than three years, busy people with no time to spend on school will be able to attach wires from a small electronic device to their heads at night before going to sleep and wake up the next morning able to ace the final exam of any college in the world.

Dr. Hubert Dorr, inventor of the "Dorr Informatics" a computer computer no bigger than a TV remote control, demonstrated the incredible learning aid last month in Fredericksburg, Arizona.

"It's fast and it's effortless to get a good education in a few hours," says the brilliant scientist.

The gadget data base of information contains all the information to pass subjects at Oxford, Yale or any other major university.

"While the student sleeps, the information program electronically inputs through some small wires attached to his head, imparting the information directly into the brain."

BUNGEE MURDER!

Jealous hubby adds 25 feet to cord of wife's lover!

By SCOTTY PAUL
Correspondent

When jealous hubby Jacques Bertrand learned his wife's lover was going to bungee jump, he substituted a longer bungee cord — and watched his rival leap to his death.

Scheming Jacques watched smugly as handsome Alain Le Gouallec landed headfirst with a sickening thud before hundreds of horrified spectators in Marseilles, France.

"It is the most cold-blooded killing I've ever seen," said Police Inspector Philippe Bourdier. "Mr. Bertrand has admitted he substituted a longer cord."

The evil husband discovered his cheating wife had been secretly meeting Alain for several months. He eavesdropped on a phone conversation between the lovers and found out Alain had planned to bungee jump at the carnival three days later.

Cunning Jacques bought a bungee cord that was 25 feet longer than the one used at the carnival. The night before Alain was to jump, the murderous hubby substituted the longer cord for the one used at the amusement park.

"He timed the bungee jump operators away by setting a small fire at the edge of the carnival," said Inspector Bourdier. "While they were helping put out the fire, Jacques switched bungee cords.

"Instead of a 115-foot cord, the unsuspecting victim attached a 140-foot cord to his feet and jumped to his death. He never had a chance."

Police thought it was a horrible accident until they discovered that Alain had been romancing Jacques' wife. Jacques broke down and confessed under police grilling.

He's in a Marseilles jail charged with murder.

orders wife: Smoke 15 cigarettes a day — or lose $800G estate!

VIDEOTAPES of Wilma smoking cigarettes are provided regularly to her dead husband's attorneys.

By LISA MERAKIS / Special correspondent

Vengeful hubby Presley Wyzkowski left his wife an $800,000 estate when he died, but she can't spend a penny of the fortune — unless she smokes like a chimney!

The 68-year-old widow used to nag her husband day in and day out about his smoking, Wyzkowski's will says. So he's paying her back by forcing her to take up the habit she hates in order to inherit his money.

"I have to smoke 15 cigarettes a day or I can't have a dime," says Wyzkowski's widow Wilma, a housewife in Detroit. "And he knew the smell of smoke just makes me sick.

"I think it's childish and irresponsible of him to punish me this way just because I tried to help him quit smoking. I was only thinking of him.

"Now he's forcing me to ruin my health in order to have enough money to survive." Wyzkowski's will left no uncertainty about the dead man's intentions. The retired auto worker said he was so sick of his wife's incessant nagging that it had literally driven him into an early grave.

"The more she nagged me about my smoking, the more smoking I did," he said in the 13-page document. "I was so angry and so nervous that I went from one pack a day to three. I know that's why I developed cancer.

"Every time I lit up she was in my face, harangling me about my habit, complaining about the smoke, fretting about the odor and the smell. She made my life a living hell and I intend to pay her back for every unhappy moment she gave me."

Wyzkowski's will instructs his wife to smoke 15 cigarettes a day every day. She must submit a daily time-coded videotape to the dead man's lawyers showing her smoking the required number of cigarettes or she will be cut off from her weekly stipend, the will states.

In the four months since she has been smoking for a living, Wilma says she's lost seven pounds, developed a hacking cough and contracted gum disease. But she can't afford to stop smoking even though it makes her sick.

"I never had a job," the widow said. "I don't have any investment. And Presley's social security check is too small to live on.

"He's left me in a situation where I have to smoke if I'm going to eat. After I put up with his bad habits for years, isn't that a terrible thing to do to me?"
